INDIANA UNIVERSITY OVERSEAS STUDY

2015-16 Annual Report

This report outlines the activities and achievements of Overseas Study at Indiana University during the 2015-16 academic year. Note: The most recent nation-wide study abroad data available for the 2014-15 academic year is collected and reported by the Institute of International Education (IIE). Therefore, many of the charts in this report show student data from 2014-15 to allow direct comparison to national trends.

GENDER & MINORITY DATA

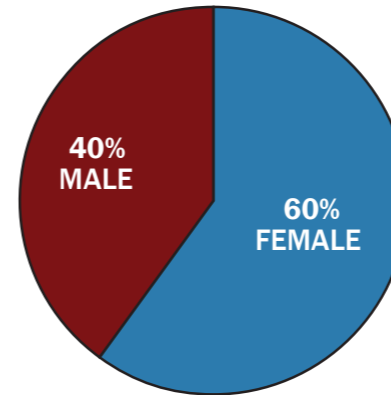

IUB continues to have a higher percentage of males studying abroad than the national average.

The percentage of minorities studying abroad now mirrors the on-campus population at IUB, driven by higher participation of Hispanic and Asian American students.

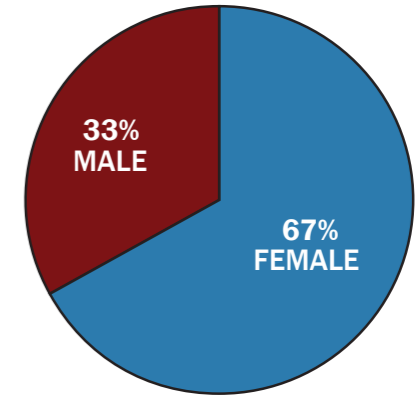

Note: In 2014-15, 23% of the 443 IUPUI students reported to IIE as studying abroad were minorities.

NEW PROGRAMS

52 proposals for credit-bearing programs in 34 countries were approved in 2015-16. The majority are department or school-based with oversight from the Overseas Study Advisory Council and assistance from the Office of Overseas Study.

System-wide program development grants were made available through the Office of the Vice President for International Affairs in the fall and spring of 2015-16 with eleven successful applications.

Among new activities proposed, 16 were in Asia (China, India, Japan, S. Korea, Singapore, Thailand and Vietnam), 12 in Latin America and the Caribbean (Chile, Cuba, Costa Rica, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Guatemala, Haiti and Jamaica); 3 in Africa (Rwanda, S. Africa, Swaziland); 4 in Oceania (Australia and New Zealand), 16 in Europe (Croatia, France, Germany, Greece, Ireland, Italy, The Netherlands, Poland, Serbia, Sweden and the United Kingdom) and 1 in North America (Canada).

There were 35 non-credit approvals for activities in 27 countries, including research, service, conferences, musical performances, sports and internships. The disciplines included business, chemistry, dentistry, fine arts, geography history, informatics, journalism, law, media, music, nursing, optometry, public administration, tourism and volunteer service.

Eleven proposals received grants for development in these areas:

- IUB Food culture and tourism in Italy
- IUB Ecology in Bonaire
- IUB Furniture design in Barcelona
- IUB Business in Mongolia
- IUB Global IT in India
- IUB Public Health in India
- IUB Portuguese language and culture in Lisbon
- IUPUI Nursing in Germany
- IUS Sociology in Wales
- IUS Geography in Ireland
- IUSB Criminal Justice in the Netherlands

Most of these new programs will go through the proposal review process in 2016-17.

SCHOOLS & CAMPUSES

All schools and campuses of Indiana University are active with study abroad programs.

In 2015-16 Overseas Study staff convened the IUB Study Abroad Working Group twice to discuss common challenges, best practices and new compliance requirements. The group is comprised of representatives from all IUB units that manage programs abroad. Joining the group was Russell Valentino of The College of Arts and Sciences as its first associate dean for international affairs.

In October of 2015 Overseas Study staff convened a special summit of faculty from IU's six urban campuses so they could meet their disciplinary counterparts across the IU system. Sharing curricular and logistical information as well as common challenges resulted in many synergies which resulted in some combined programming.

IUB school and campus highlights:

- Kelley School of Business: BUS X272: Global Business Immersion at 15 sites abroad.
- SPEA: New programs in Poland, Guatemala, Australia and Germany
- SPH: Disabilities services program in Serbia.

- Maurer School of Law: New internship site in Vietnam
- Media School: New site in Okinawa, Japan and continuing programs in Chile, China, Japan, Uganda, and the UK
- School of Informatics and Computing: New program in Global IT in India
- Jacobs School of Music: Performance groups to Austria and Germany; music education to Haiti
- College of Arts and Sciences: apparel merchandising programs in Barcelona and Guatemala; internships in Hong Kong; anthropology food tourism in Italy; geological field study in Tanzania and Canada.

IUPUI schools continue to be active while also creating new programs:

- School of Medicine: Medical service groups relocated to Nicaragua
- Dentistry: Dentistry in UK
- Nursing: Short-term program on global health in Spain
- Engineering and Technology: Motorsports in UK
- School of Informatics and Computing: Reconstituted service program to Greece
- Kelley School of Business: Business in China

- PETM: Tourism in Thailand
- Public Health: Public Health Internship in Rwanda
- Herron School of Art: Art in Prague
- Social Work: Social Work Service in Croatia
- World Languages and Cultures: Biology in Japan

OVERSEAS STUDY ADVISORY COUNCIL ACTIVITIES

In 2015-16 the Overseas Study Advisory Council (OSAC) evaluated proposals that resulted in 87 new activities, 52 of which were credit-bearing, a 40% increase over the previous year. Council members utilized an on-line departmental services portal, linked to the iAbroad system used by students, to conduct its proposal reviews. This new resource provides a seamless integration of programs into the Big List from the beginning of the process.

The Office of Overseas Study monitored worldwide occurrences with potential impact on IU students and kept OSAC's Committee on Safety and Responsibility informed during the terrorist events in France, Brussels and Turkey. Subsequent to a security report requested by the upper administration about the IU School of Medicine project in Kenya, medical students, medical residents and dentistry students were permitted to return to Moi University for rotations starting in January 2016.

In addition to its annual Safety and Responsibility Workshop for faculty leading IU programs abroad, Overseas Study collaborated with Public Safety and IU units to comply with the Department of Education's Clery Act, which requires reporting on crime incidents abroad when IU controls the location of the program.

OSAC's Review Committee ensured that all IU programs throughout the system are monitored through required reports, evaluations, or site visits as mandated by OSAC policies. Overseas Study monitors the documentation, summarizes them, communicates with program leaders regarding the outcomes and reauthorizes programs when all is deemed satisfactory.

ADDITIONAL OPTIONS THROUGH NON-IU PROGRAMS AND THIRD PARTY PROVIDERS

IU students can access programs offered through other institutions and organizations if those are suitable to their academic and economic situations. More than 300 students a year select this option.

For students who select these options Overseas Study helps vet choices, tracks student participation and maintains relationships with study abroad providers and institutions. Many sent representatives to campus in the past year, some to build on current relationships and others to create new ones.

Visitors this past year included representatives from:

- Academic Programs International (API)
- American Councils
- American Institute for Foreign Study (AIFS)
- Australian National University (ANU)
- Ben Gurion University

BOLOGNA CONSORTIAL STUDIES PROGRAM CELEBRATES ITS 50TH ANNIVERSARY

IU's Italian immersion exchange program at the University of Bologna, now a 15-member consortium founded by the late Distinguished Professor Mark Musa, celebrated its 50th anniversary on May 27-28, 2016 with two events.

The first was held in the historic Aula Absidale Santa Lucia with over 200 attendees, including program alumni, former resident directors, faculty and administrators from IU and the University of Bologna, representatives from BCSP institutions and friends of the program.

President Michael McRobbie and Rettore Francesco Ubertini, made remarks as did Professor Christopher Kleinhenz, a former resident director from the University of Wisconsin and Mark Musa's first Ph.D. student; Riccardo Giovanelli, renowned professor of astronomy at Cornell and the first exchange student from the University of Bologna to attend Indiana University in 1969-70; Giulia Manenti, an exchange student who recently attended UW and Janis Russell, IU alumna and gospel singer who studied in Bologna in 1972-73. Andrea Ricci, current director of the Bologna Consortial Studies Program, and Kathleen Sideli, managing director of BCSP, presided over the ceremony during which President McRobbie conferred the Thomas Hart Benton Medallion for Distinguished Achievement on Rettore Ubertini (shown above).

Additionally a scholarship created by IU for exchange students to recognize Mark Musa was announced with his widow, Isabella Musa, accepting the honor. The event culminated with a reception at the Salotto Boschi. The second anniversary event was an alumni luncheon held the next day at Villa Scarani where 175 alumni, guests and the IU delegation were entertained by a jazz band led by Michael Brusha, a program alumnus from the 1970s who was reunited with singer Janis Russell for the first time in forty years. Study Abroad Peer Counselors 14 study abroad returnees provide crucial peer guidance to students on campus.

INTEGRATION OF EDUCATION ABROAD INTO DEGREE REQUIREMENTS

In 2015-16 advisors at Overseas Study created new major-specific flyers for Astronomy, Environmental Studies, Neuroscience and Physics which rounded out the other STEM-related flyers created the previous year.

Overseas Study continues to participate in committee work regarding the IUB Common Curriculum through which IUB students can count a six-week, six-credit program abroad as fulfillment of the World Languages and Cultures requirement (or a combination of two three-week, three-credit programs).

Through an agreement among the Offices of the Vice President for Undergraduate Education, Overseas Study and the College of Arts and Sciences, Overseas Study provides data to OVPUE on students who have completed programs abroad that fall within the parameters established by the General Education Committee. And Overseas Study has worked with The College and OVPUE to ensure that appropriate courses taken abroad may count towards other areas within the requirements.

ADVISING OUTREACH TO SCHOOLS, DEPARTMENTS & CAMPUSES

Overseas Study reaches out across units in order to maintain contact with advisors and directors of undergraduate studies and offers two workshops a year for them. Overseas Study advisors have formal liaison relationships with IUB departments to encourage closer relationships.

Outreach also includes the creation of major-specific information sheets, an electronic newsletter twice a year to Bloomington Advisors Council and study abroad campus coordinators on all IU campuses and lists of study abroad participants each term to departmental advisors as well as campus coordinators, including scholarship award information.

In addition to its new on-line orientation program for semester and summer programs through an on-line interactive portal, students going on non-IU program receive orientation through an interactive webinar hosted by Overseas Study which is recorded so students can replay it as needed.

The staff of Overseas Study:

- reached 6,821 students through presentations in halls of residence, classes and special groups, including IUB Sprint Sessions for First Year Student Orientation. Overseas Study is also included in Red Carpet Days. This was an increase of 18% over the previous year.

- visited five other campuses in 2015-16 to make presentations to over 300 students.
- launched "Study Abroad 101" a comprehensive online presentation, completed by over 200 people by the end of its first five months.
- continued to utilize faculty expertise to screen dossiers, direct programs or provide instruction.
- contributed articles to various campus publications.
- hosted on-line chats for students about the application process.
- conducted discipline-specific information meetings, to reach a wider range of majors.

INTERNSHIPS, SERVICE & RESEARCH PROGRAMS

Internships

31% of IUPUI students abroad were enrolled in credit-bearing internships or work experience, many at the graduate level, while 18% of IUB students abroad participated in credit-bearing internships with continued growth in this type of programming.

OVPIA makes available internship incentive grants to encourage students to select programs in non-traditional locations that offer internships. The nine recipients in 2015-16 had internships in Argentina, China, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Ghana and Hungary with placements in human development, economics, diplomacy, public health and education.

Overseas Study's advisor who focuses on experiential activities—internships, service, research and volunteerism—does targeted outreach regarding internship options abroad and is in regular communication with IU career service offices. 12 of the new programs proposed in 2015-16 involved internships from Apparel Merchandising, Kelley School of Business, SPEA, Maurer School of Law and IUPUI Fairbanks School of Public Health.

Service

IUB: Service programs included KSB alternative break programs in Costa Rica and Nicaragua, Kelley's Institute for Social Impact service programs in Ecuador, Ghana and Rwanda; five student-led Global Brigades groups to two countries--Public Health and Water Brigades in Nicaragua; Medical, Environmental and Human Rights Brigades in Panama. Timmy Foundation groups went to Guatemala and the Dominican Republic.

IUPUI is very active with service-focused programming. The IU School of Medicine facilitated service programs for medical students in China, Kenya and Nicaragua. There were also medicine, public health and health/rehab science placements in Costa Rica, Ecuador, Panama, Japan and Rwanda; there were ongoing service learning programs for undeveloped graduates in Costa Rica, Croatia, Germany, Greece, Thailand, and Swaziland, with informatics, honors, liberal arts, nursing, social work, public health and engineering components and dental clinic service programs in Ecuador, Guatemala, Haiti, Kenya, and Mexico. They also offered non-credit service programs in the Dominican Republic, Panama and Trinidad.

Research

A number of students participated in supervised research projects in various locales including history in Egypt, geography in Georgia, public administration in Colombia, informatics in Italy, chemistry in Tanzania and geography in Zambia.

OUTCOMES ASSESSMENT

Dr. Victor Borden, senior advisor to IU's executive vice president for university academic affairs and professor of educational leadership and policy studies at IUB, tracked time to graduation of IUB students who study abroad. The Big Ten Academic Alliance (formerly the CIC) conducts a benchmark survey each year which includes such data. Based on Dr. Borden's analysis, IU students who study abroad graduate in less time than those who do not study abroad. When comparing entering classes of 2008, 2009 and 2010, the rates for graduation in four years or less are significantly higher for the study abroad group-78%, 73% and 80% respectively as compared to the non-study abroad students at 47%, 47% and 50%. 97% of those in the 2008 first year cohort who studied abroad graduated in six years or less as compared to 71% of those who didn't study abroad.

EXPERIENTIAL LEARNING

In 2014-15, 575 IU students participated in non-credit experiential programs abroad, the majority of which were service-based.

*Recorded here but not included in total IU gift aid award records provided by IUB Office of Student Financial Assistance for OVST participation

IU continues to be a leader for its flexible financial aid policies for students going abroad. In 2015-16 IU students received almost $11 million in loans, gift aid and grants through IU and federal and state sources. 23% of IU study abroad participants used loans for their programs (overall average of $7,600 per student). Gift aid dedicated to study abroad activities is at an all-time high, at over $3.5 million which was 33% of the financial aid used by students in addition to 38% regular gift aid and 29% loan money.

A recent benchmarking survey among Big Ten institutions again showed that IU was well ahead of other Big Ten institutions in the amount of gift aid utilized by students for education abroad experiences.

63% of the students had some form of financial assistance applied towards their study abroad program (not including school-based programs which utilized various approaches to grants and discounts). The total financial aid amount also included c. $221K for 34 students from the other IU campuses who participated in system-wide programs.

The IUB Office of Student Financial Assistance once again set aside special funding for 21st Century Covenant students to access summer study abroad, providing individual grants averaging $6,000 each. A successful three-year pilot project with similar funding proved that more underrepresented as well as first generation students were able to go abroad because of this special summer support.

PRESIDENTIAL MATCH SCHOLARSHIPS

President McRobbie's promise to match $20 million in study abroad endowments continues to make progress. The endowment is over $9 million with commitments at all IU campuses and at most IUB schools. In 2015-16 awards were made to 138 students for a total of $217K; $145K for 76 IUB students and $71K for 62 students from the other IU campuses.

HUTTON GRANTS

Overseas Study collaborates with the Hutton Honors College to promote the availability of the Hutton International Experience Program Grants as well as special named scholarships to students applying to study abroad. In 2015-16 these went to 686 students for a total of $863,960. 71% of the funding went to students participating in programs through Overseas Study, 18% for unit-based programs, 7% for non-IU programs and 4% for non-credit service and internships abroad.

OVST MINORITY SCHOLARSHIPS

IUB minority students abroad are 16% of the total which mirrors the IUB campus population. Overseas Study works with diversity offices to convey that study abroad opportunities are available to all qualified students and that there is funding available for them.

The Office of Diversity, Equity and Multicultural Affairs gave $300K in grant funding in 2015-16 to 123 students going abroad at an average of $2,435 each. DEMA also cosponsored the CIEE Passport Caravan, which provided free passports to 280 minority and first-generation students.

SCHOLARSHIPS THROUGHOUT THE SYSTEM

Overseas Study granted $114K in 2015-16 to students with demonstrated need and merit on administered programs, including minority and regional campus students.

This was the tenth year for the David Starr Jordan Scholarship which are for students from five regional campuses (IUE, IUK, IUN, IUS, and IUSB) who participate in credit-bearing programs approved by the IU Overseas Study Advisory Council and offered by their campuses. 49 applicants received $14,875 funding in addition to campus matching funds.

CAMPUS SUPPORT

In addition to the David Starr Jordan scholarships and the new Presidential Match scholarships, all IU campuses offered other special funding for students going abroad: IUE: $52,600, IUK: $12,175, IUS: $21,450, IUSB: $13,000, IUPUI: $70,000.

UNIT SUPPORT

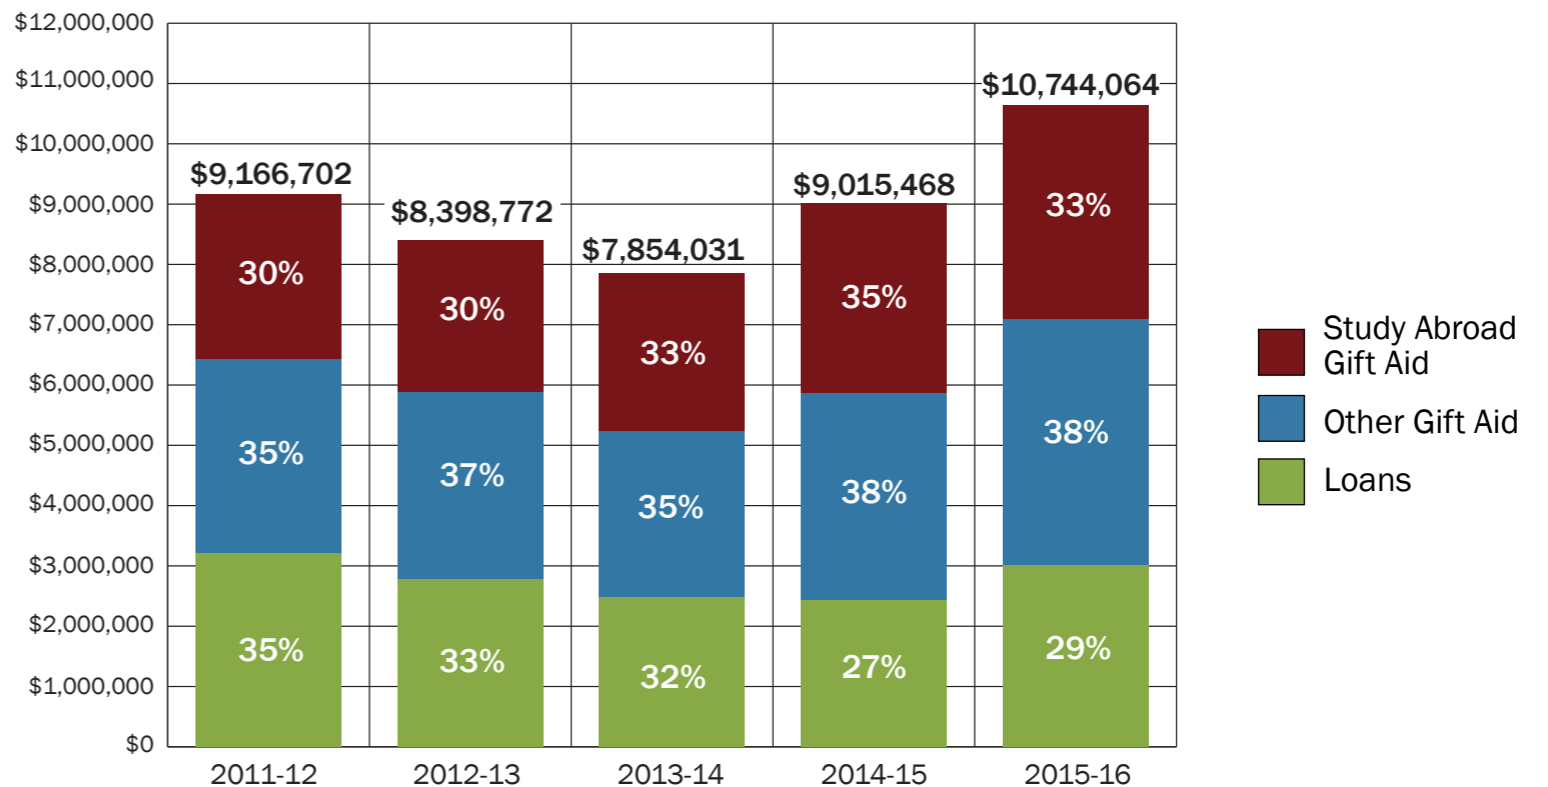

A number of IUB schools have dedicated significant resources for their students going abroad. SPEA made available $384K in dedicated scholarships to 250 students accepted to their programs abroad, the Media School contributed $149K towards their international programs for journalism students and KSB provided a total of $101K in special scholarships to 68 qualified students for study abroad and an additional $50,824 to Kelley Scholars.

Overseas Study staff is involved in various professional activities around the world in order to share IU experiences with other colleagues. These opportunities also allow IU to adapt successful approaches to education abroad used elsewhere. Provider organizations often look to IU for advice and collaboration, based on its long-term experiences in areas including program development, financial aid portability and system-wide quality assurance practices.

Kathleen Sideli continues on the board of CIEE (Council on International Educational Exchange) and in 2015-16 became chair of the Audit Committee.

Susan Carty serves as Conference Chair of IES Abroad and is a member of their board of directors.

Katie Saur is a member of the Bloomington Professional Council, serves on the Steering Committee of the Bloomington Academic Advisors Council and joined the Curriculum Award Working Group of The Forum on Education Abroad.

Danielle Samek is the NAFSA Rainbow Special Interest Group's scholarship co-coordinator.

Elizabeth Shuman is chair of the communications and public relations committee of the Bloomington Academic Advisors Council.

Anna Bragin presented a session at the BAAC Spring Conference "How in the World am I Supposed to Advise This Student?"

PROGRESS ON GOALS FOR 2015-16

All goals were achieved at some level but will continue as ongoing goals in 2016-17 given their importance.

1. Further expand and diversify study abroad opportunities throughout Asia.

India and China are among the top 10 destinations of IU students abroad system-wide.

2. Develop new programs with OVPIA grants, particularly in non-traditional locations and underrepresented disciplines.

Eleven program development grants were awarded to faculty in 2015-16 who created programs involving ecology in Bonaire, interior design in Barcelona, geography in Ireland and food culture in Italy. Programs to be offered soon include informatics in India, public health in India, business in Mongolia, sociology in Wales, criminal justice in the Netherlands, nursing in Germany and language and culture in Portugal.

3. Expand numbers of students pursuing internships abroad.

18% of IUB students abroad participated in credit-bearing internships in 2015-16, which is comparable to the past few years. Thirteen internship programs were added to the IU portfolio which will increase student participation. The percentage of IUPUI students pursuing internships abroad continues in the 31% range.

4. Expand the numbers of underrepresented students, particularly those not equally represented from the general campus population, across program.

The percentage of underrepresented students abroad on IUB programs now mirrors the campus population at 16%, and 23% at IUPUI. The Office of Diversity, Equity and Multicultural Affairs is actively engaged with outreach efforts to get underrepresented students abroad, granting significant scholarships and partnering with other organizations and institutions with similar goals. They launched a new program in the Dominican Republic for DEMA students in 2015-16 with great success.

5. Work with all IU schools and campuses to integrate study abroad within the curriculum and to support program development.

Campus programming was at an all-time high in 2015-16. Overseas Study assists all schools and campuses to get their students abroad, either through system-wide programs or through unit-based programs. The iAbroad application portal allows inter-campus study abroad promotion and participation.

The IU High School Honors Program in Foreign Languages has developed a new location for 2017 in Osaka, Japan.

- The IU Honors Program in Foreign Languages (IUHPFL) integrates high school students into host families in six countries with daily instruction in the language, conducting all communications in the host country language and adhering to an honor code for good behavior. The instructors are predominantly from Indiana University where they receive training for their leadership roles in the program.
- The German program is in its second year in Graz, Austria. In its third year, the program in Hangzhou, China continues to attract students who are committed to Chinese. 2017 will see a new site in Osaka, Japan.
- IUHPFL collaborates with IUB offices to provide a gateway for program alumni to Indiana University. Overseas Study works in consonance with HPFL to let students know what opportunities await them here at IU—financial, experiential and academic-- through special marketing materials and events.
- An analysis of the most recent six cohorts shows that 1/3 of them attended Indiana University and an average of 50% of those who attended IU participated in study abroad (more than double the participation rate of the general undergraduate population), an average of 13% participated in year-long programs, as compared to less than 3% of other IUB students. They studied in many different countries, well beyond the six countries available through HPFL.
- In 2016 the IUHPFL served 261 students, across ten programs.
